ECONOMICS

Through the study of Economics, students learn how to look at a complex world and make sense of the wide variety of behaviors they observe. Students majoring in economics learn the analytical skills used to understand how households, firms and governments make economic decisions, comparing costs and benefits in an effort to maximize their impact.

Curriculum

- Combination Degrees
- Economics
- Economics Minor

Students will learn the critical skills used to determine the implications of economic decisions for the allocation of society’s scarce resources, the pricing of goods and services, the distribution of income, the behavior of macroeconomic variables, and the effect of government intervention.

Classes within the economics major include, among others, international trade, law and economics, economics of sports, game theory, and public choice. The analytical skills students develop are useful preparation for careers in business, law, government, public policy and academia. A degree in economics is also appropriate for students intending to pursue advanced degrees in the social sciences and in professional schools.

Coursework for the Major

The major requires 37-39 credits. Students must achieve minimum grades of C in each required foundation and economics course, including the economics electives and outside substitutes.

Academic Learning Compact

This major teaches students the skills used to understand how households, firms and governments make economic decisions and the implications of those decisions for resource allocation, pricing, the distribution of income and macroeconomic variables.

Before Graduating Students Must

• Take the Economics Field Test conducted by the ETS. This test will be 10% of the student’s grade in ECO 3203. The goal of the Department of Economics is that each student’s average score exceeds the national average of 154; however, a score of 154 is not a graduation requirement.
• Students who want to graduate magna cum laude or summa cum laude must propose and defend an honors thesis before the department’s undergraduate committee.
• Complete requirements for the baccalaureate degree, as determined by faculty.

Students in the Major Will Learn to

Student Learning Outcomes (SLOs)

Content
1. Identify indifference curves as representations of consumer preferences, and to evaluate these indifference curves in the context of preference relations.

Critical Thinking
2. Model and analyze unfamiliar social interactions using a formal economic framework.

Communication
3. Communicate effectively the concept of opportunity costs and tradeoffs.
